Bryan Duell Goodyear Fire Department

How long have you worked for the city?

I began with the city of Goodyear as a lifeguard in the summer of 1992. I became a volunteer firefighter in August of 1992, and I achieved full-time status with the Goodyear Fire Department in May of 1995.

What are you currently working on?

I am a battalion chief currently in charge of Community Risk Reduction. We're working on new record management software, integration with business licensing for fire permits, and providing support for programs relating to inspections, investigations and community education.

Favorite thing about working for the city?

The people, the personalities and the way we treat each other. To me, there is no better place to work!

Favorite Core Value:

Optimism. A focus on this value can keep attitude and productivity high. It's a personal choice.

What do you like to do in your spare time?

Spend time with my family.
