8. Staff and consultant presentations
- 8.1 Review of Rate Setting Process - Dan Jackson

Consultant Jackson provided an overview of the rate setting process.

A Committee Member asked if the Adopted Five-Year Water/Waste Water Rate Plan had been viewed as successful, and Jackson replied that he believes so, explaining that Goodyear is in good financial condition right now and this is partially why.

A Committee Member asked why Phoenix's information isn't included in the Residential Monthly Charge Comparison exhibit, and Jackson said that very large communities realize a savings due to economies of scale and can provide water more cheaply so it's not a fair comparison. He added that Goodyear takes a proactive role in planning for the future. The investment the City makes to secure water resources can't be understated because those who control water resources control their future.

Facilitator Makinen said it would be a good time to discuss items the Committee Members would like to see in future meetings. The following topics/items were suggested:

- What capacity of water can the system generate?
- How many plants, MGDs, ground water...not just high level information.
- How many people are being served? What's the population projection? Business projection? Ratio of capacity versus people.
- Information on the policy of the transfers to the General Fund. Are there other costs that should be included?
- Any idea how much water in Goodyear is lost to leakage? Is that part of a capital project?
- Maps of where the plants are compared to growth areas.

- An overall picture of the City’s needs for the next 10 years.
- More information about how we compare to other cities and why is Goodyear higher.
- How are other communities dealing with landscape water versus other uses. Could we discourage landscape water usage by raising rates?
- COVID-19 - Is there any impact to the treatment, production or safety of water?
- Critical infrastructure protection. Is the City concerned with the security of their facilities and how does that effect rates?
- How other water providers in Goodyear compare with Goodyear.
- How does the City’s debt plan effect rates?
- Also the difference between multi-housing versus single family homes.
